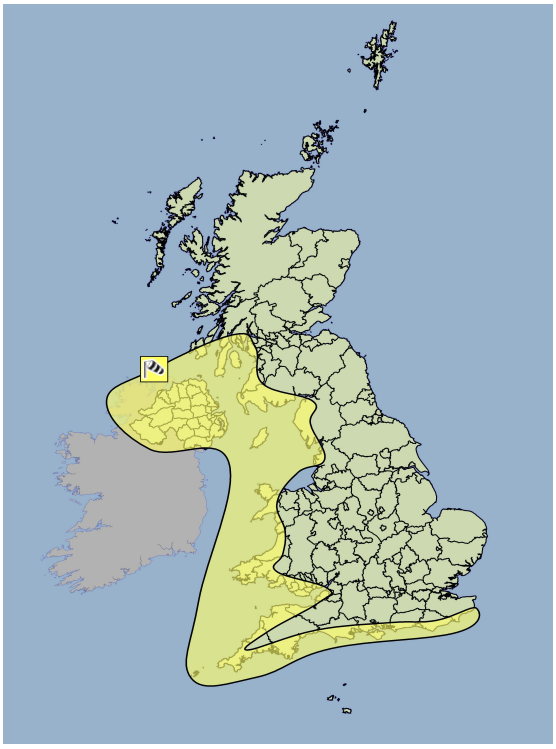
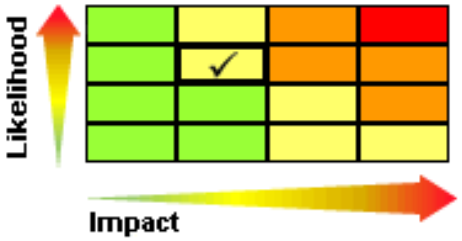
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A deep Atlantic low will move north close to western parts of the UK on Saturday. Associated very strong winds together with bands of squally showers will affect many parts but particularly western areas. The combination of very strong winds, large waves and high tides will lead to hazardous conditions at times in some coastal areas. Winds will ease from the south later on Saturday but remain strong in the north into early Sunday.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Wind

Valid from 06:00 on Sat, 01st Feb 2014 until 06:00 on Sun, 02nd Feb 2014

Winds will increase on Saturday, with gusts widely to 50 to 60 mph, and perhaps to around 70 mph in exposed parts of the west and north. Additionally large waves could lead to over-topping along some coastlines. The public should be aware of these hazards.

This is an update to the Alert first issued on Wednesday to include English Channel coasts.
